ARTEMUS WARD.

Some Jokes of His, and Anecdotes of Actors.

Baltimore Day.

One of the leading men in America in theatrical matters, when it was proposed to bring out the Passion Play at his theater, turned to the stage manager and asked: "But, see here—how many characters will there be? I want to know."

"Well, sir, there'll be our Lord, you know, and Caiaphas, the high priest, and Nicodemus, and Pontius Pilot, and twelve disciples—"

"Twelve! twelve disciples! On my stage? I'll have forty of 'em!"

Of course, when a manager is reckless enough to think of amending the evangelists in the wholesale way to suit the dimensions of his stage (granting that he knew, which was doubtful, the actual number of the disciples he would not be likely to respect any author's manuscript of his ideas. And, indeed, few managers ever think of doing any such thing. Their standing order in regard to plays is "Cut cut! cut!" and a Philad Lohia manager, who enjoyed the fame of reducing Speed the Plow to a single act, used to carry this practice so far that a member of his company once said of him: "C. would 'cut' the Lord's prayer down to a single sentence."

The manager spoken of above is rather notorious for his slips of the tongue. He is very much afraid of the water, and coming to New York from Boston one stormy night on a sound steamer, he is reported to have exclaimed as the boat reached her pier: "Thank heaven! I am on vice versa once more."

The late Artemus Ward (Charles F. Browne), knew what he was about when he courted the company of actors and journalists so assiduously. He took from them much more than he gave, good companion as he was, and it was the actors who taught him to give expression to his irresistible flow of spirits in a succession of practical jokes of a harmless sort, yet comical beyond measure by their very oddity and unexpectedness. "Come in here! come in here!" said he one day in Boston to the companion walking with him. "Come in here; we will have some fun."

It was a Boston pie-bakery which they entered—a place where pies were a specialty—where pies and nothing but pies were sold, wholesale and retail, all the live-long day. Browne approached the counter, behind which the proprietor of the establishment was standing, and asked, in his bland, insinuating voice: "Have you any pies?" "Pies!" replied the astounded proprietor. "Yes, pies." "Pies!" repeated the man, still more dumbfounded. "Of course—pies! Have you any—pies?"

"Pies!" gasped the shopman once more, gazing at Browne as if he thought him an escaped lunatic. "Oh, well, if you haven't got any pies, I'll inquire somewhere else. Come, Jack!" and he marched his friend out of the shop again before the salesman could recover his wits.

Artemus delighted to fillip the sedate respectability of Boston while loving the place sincerely. One day, in the early afternoon, having a lecture to deliver that evening, some of his friends concluded that he would not be able to talk so well at night if he kept on talking in front of the bar at the Parker House. They accordingly insisted on having an immediate adjournment, and Artemus, suspecting the game, determined to revenge himself. He locked arms with two gentlemen very well known, indeed, in the city—one a manager of the leading theater the other a public officer, high in the confidence and books of the Commonwealth, and walked off with them along the city's most crowded and fashionable thoroughfare. Acting as if he was in the custody and needed the care of his companions, and making his voice conspicuously loud, Artemus began: "Gentlemen, you are probably aware that the noble red man, the incomparable sayage of our plains, forests, and mountain fastnesses, whom I have studied closely in native wilds, has various shades of expressing the emotions swell his generous bosom, and of giving voice to the ceremonial inherited from an immemorial ancestry. His cries and his dances are equally peculiar, and he has a particular sort of whoop for each particular occasion. The scalp dance, the war dance, the beer dance, the dance of skulls each has its appropriate halloo, and so has the feast of the moon, the harvest feast, and so forth. But no verbal description, gentlemen, can give you an idea of these vigorous cries. They must be heard to be appreciated, and to him who has never heard them they are startling as the revelation of a life-time. In illustration of what I have said, gentlemen, I will now proceed to give you an imitation of the yell of the noble savage as, tomahawk in hand, he springs exultant from his ambush upon the astounded foes."

Thereupon Browne executed a startling and tremendous war-whoop, which made people turn for blocks round, and drew upon him the attention of thousands.

"I will now give you," said Artemus, after regaining his breath, "a faint imitation of the warrior's cry as he returns to to his wigwam, the scalp of his slain enemy dangling in gory ghastliness at his belt."

Another war-whoop, and thus the scamp kept up his game for a while or so, until his friends got him at last to his hotel.

It was in 1863 that the Duke's Motto was first played in New York. It had been imported—the English translation—by an Irish actor McDonnell, who intended playing "Lagardere." William Wheatley, however, who brought it out, took the part of "Lagardere" himself, McDonnell as "Carrickfergus."

While the piece was being played the draft riots broke out and business fell off to almost nothing. Wheatley wanted to close the house, but his contract forbade it, so he fell sick conveniently, and McDonnell's ambition was satisfied, he playing "Lagardere," and Doyle, another of the company, acting "Carrickfergus."

They played, however, to less than would pay for gas bills, and at last Wheatley locked the house up in absolute disgust. Old Man Saulsbury, a quaint musician and Briton, was in the orchestra at the time. Some one said to him: "Why, Saulsbury, I see your house is closed. What's the matter?" "Well, you see," he replied, slowly, "McDonnell, he undertook to play 'Lagardere,' and Doyle he undertook to play 'Carrickfergus,' and the two undertakers have buried the piece."

Indeed, almost all actors who are really wedded to their profession, unconsciously learn to think their life upon the boards the real one, and all else only counterfeit and tinsel. This makes them miscalculate the actual proportion of things, but helps them to become delightful companions. Joseph Jefferson, charming gentleman and most natural and unaffected of all actors, is yet nearly as much an actor off the stage as on—in both places, however, perfectly aware of the force of the maxim, "art est celare artem."

Some actors, indeed, carry their art with them to the very brink of the dark river. Eph Horn, the famous jester and minstrel, when he was dying, was under the generous care of big-hearted Tony Pastor. He suffered much, and Tony was afraid his nervous system would break down. "Now, old man," said he, "I know you'll do the best you can. All of us have to face this sort of music some day or another. There's no help for it. You always were a plucky chap, and I know you ain't going to flunk now; are you, Eph?" "Well, Tony, no; I reckon not. There isn't any use in kicking against the pricks; besides," whispered the old minstrel, with a feeble attempt at a smile, "you know I always was a good 'end man.'" And with this he turned over and died.

Two women were discussing the desirability of a pair of jeweled garters in a shop window. One said: "It ought to be a safe way to carry one's diamonds." "Oh, no," replied the other; "it would only add a new horror to the perils of robbery."

FOR CONGRESS.

We are authorized to announce JAMES P. HARBESON, of Fleming county, as a candidate for Congress, subject to the action of the Democracy in convention assembled.

We are authorized to announce Col. J. SMITH HURT, of Bath County, as a candidate for Congress in the 9th Congressional District at the next November election. Subject to the action of the democratic party.

CHIEF JUSTICE MARSHALL is to have a monument to cost $40,000.

At a meeting of the iron and nail manufacturers of the west, held at Pittsburg, it was decided not to interfere with the card rates, and leave matters as they are until October.

THE sporadic case of yellow fever discovered on board of a vessel that landed at New Orleans, recently; was promptly quarantined and no fears are entertained of a spread of the disease from this case.

JUDGE JERE BLACK has been interviewed out at Chicago, and says that Hancock will be the democratic candidate for president in 1884, and James G. Blaine will lead whatever may be left of the republican party at that time.

THE Washington City Dispatch remarks that "Grant won't do, Arthur is too much of a Stalwart, Blaine has too much guano on his boots, and Conkling is too much of a kicker. Now what is the Republican party going to do in 1884?"

It is reported in Washington that R. T. Merrick, employed by the Government to assist in the prosecution of the alleged Star Route cases, has become disgusted with Colonel Bliss and the Republican trickery by which these trials are to be made farces, and will draw out.

THE war for wages is still in progress with the employers generally masters of the situation. When workmen shall vote for their own interests instead of the success of party, they will not be compelled to strike or starve. The ballot box can make them masters instead of slaves.

THE error in the second section of the internal revenue law, concerning the tax to be paid by retail dealers in leaf tobacco, was corrected by the senate. The senate also passed the river and harbor bill and took up the bill providing for the admission of Dakota.

THE cases of all saloon keepers arrested for violating the Smith Sunday law prior to June 25th, have been dismissed in the Cincinnati police court. There were three hundred and fifty of them. It is stated that efforts will be made to secure indictments against some of the offenders, with the intention of trying them in the common pleas court.

ALEXANDRIA EVACUATED.

The City in Flames and the Egyptian Army Demoralized and in Full Retreat—Two Thousand Killed in the Forts During the Bombardment.

THE TELEGRAPH SHIP CHILTERN, OFF ALEXANDRIA, July 13—8:30 a. m.—Alexandria has been evacuated and the city is in flames. The telegraph ship Chiltern has been ordered to take up a position near the neutral fleets.

LONDON, July 13—10 a. m.—In a telegram sent at 9:25 a. m., Admiral Seymour confirms the report of the evacuation of Alexandria. The entire garrison withdrew under the flag of truce, leaving the Bedouins to fire and pillage the town. The Decoy has gone to Port Said to ascertain the state of affairs there.

ALEXANDRIA, July 13—9:48 A. M.—The Egyptian army is greatly demoralized and in full retreat towards the interior. The European quarter of the town, including the Exchange and telegraph office, are utterly destroyed. The city was set on fire by released convicts, who committed horrible atrocities.

The telegraph ship Chiltern is crowded with survivors, who fought their way to the beach from whence the boats of the fleet removed them. They report having passed a dreadful night, defending themselves desperately.

One hundred Europeans and other Christians in the Ottoman Band and the adjoining buildings were massacred.

Part of the fleet is now leaving for Port Said.

ALEXANDRIA, July 13—10 A. M.—The European quarter is burned. Hundreds have been killed in the streets. Two thousand were killed in the forts during the bombardment. The fleet has entirely suspended action. Evidently there is no government to deal with. The city is given over to anarchy and pillage.

NEWS BREVITIES.

The steamer Belle of Lacrosse, North West and barge Lucy Bertram burned at St. Louis. Loss, $40,000.

A handsome monument is being erected by military subscription to Prince Louis Napoleon opposite the Royal Military Academy in Woolwich, where he was for some time a student.

A party of girls near Rosemont, Pa., all practical horsewomen, have formed a little club and have been having hurdle races for several weeks past in a series of fields picked out for the purposes.

At Texarkana, Ark., the lightning struck a three-story brick building, and the walls falling crushed a building adjoining in which were twenty or thirty persons. To add to the horror fire broke out under the ruins and soon spread to adjoining buildings which were destroyed. Some of the bodies were taken out. Twenty to thirty persons are supposed to have been killed.

A Richmond (Va.) Workshop.

We clip the following from the Industrial South. We have visited the shops of this firm and know that the statements are correct. It only shows that Richmond people do care for their employees:

"One feature of Allen & Ginter's factory deserves particular notice, even in the brief space here given it. Justice to the whole establishment could not be done except in a magazine article or in many columns of a newspaper. The feature is this: In the equipment of the interior, special attention was paid to those proprieties of life which in so many factories are strangely, we might say criminally, overlooked, and which tend to lower the tone, the morale of all who are employed in them. Messrs. Allen & Ginter do not allow the mingling of the sexes under any circumstances, the arrangements of private apartments being precisely that of a first-class hotel, which indeed the factory, as to its outside, closely resembles. As much regard is paid to the womanly sensibilities of the girls as if they were the children or the guests of the proprietors, and the result is seen in their lady-like bearing and demeanor, which always deeply impresses the stranger. The respect thus paid to their daughters gratifies the parents beyond words, maintains the character of the establishment, and makes Messrs. Allen & Ginter at all times able to secure a class of labor which is out of the reach of those who heartlessly look upon their operatives as machines, or treat them as so many cattle, destitute of every human as human instinct and elevated impulse."

Our Indiana Cousins.

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA, July 5, 1882.

Ed. Bulletin: We omitted the important industry at Brooksville of a paper mill that furnishes the Cincinnati Enquirer the paper on which that colossal sheet is printed. The buckeye wood is used, not the buckeye fruit that is converted into starch. I have specimens of the wood in all its stages of process to receiving the ink, that I value for its novelty.

Rushville and Rush county at this time show more Kentucky individuality and collectively than any other section of Indiana. We are the guest of Mr. Martin Bliss, who I have not met since I and others assisted him over the Ohio one cold winter night, through heavy ice at Vanceburg to get married. This was in 1845, he married a Miss Hattie Carr. Thirty-seven years thereafter I have the pleasure to congratulate them as living in a happy home, prosperous in all things, respected and beloved. Now don't tell all, that run away matches are fatal, this instance and many others engaged in by the writer resulted to the mutual advantage of all engaged therein.

I am writing in the law office of Thomas & Spann, prominent and successful lawyers. Mr. Thomas is a son of George Thomas and nephew of Col. Jeff. Walker, of Lewis county. Mr. Spann, present state senator, married a Miss Carr, of Kentucky. The surrounding county is filled up with Mason, Lewis and Fleming people. From the courteous and special attentions paid us, our stay could be prolonged for an indefinite time.

George Campbell, editor of the Graphic, a new paper and complete outfit of late improved machinery and power press is out in his third print with a specimen paper creditable to the genius of the editor and skill of the foreman. Our cousins are overwhelming us with offers. Best engagements calls us to Indianapolis where you will hear from

MR. GEORGE OWENS, of this city, has applied for letters patent on what promises to be a very useful invention. THE East End Reed and Cornet Band were out last night, serenading their friends in East Maysville. The boys are much improved in their music and continue to practice industriously. The fete for their benefit takes place this evening and tomorrow evening, at the public school grounds. Preparations have been made to make it a most enjoyable occasion. A waxed stage sixteen by one hundred and eight feet has been provided for dancing, and there will be a good string band in attendance. There will be also a refreshment stand on the grounds and the usual good order will be maintained. It is to be hoped the attendance will be large.

COUNTY POINTS.

GERMANTOWN.

The heavy rains which have fallen put a stop to the machines in this vicinity and as a result the farmers are wearing long faces.

We learn that Dr. Savage has written to college Hill, Ky., for a professor to take charge of the college at this place. We think the patrons of the school ought to feel under obligations to the doctor for the earnestness with which he looks after the interests of the school at this place, and they ought to remember that with all the earnestness manifested, a man, and not an angel, will have to be employed so that they must not expect impeccability on his part. We have all the necessary facilities here for a good school, if we will unify our efforts we can have it. Let us have a first class professor and a faithful performance of duty on our part and we will succeed.

Rev. Mr. Tiller, of the Baptist church, will preach in this town next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Baptists have been talking of building a church here. Why not? It seems that every Baptist in the place ought to contribute liberally to such a noble enterprise.

Mr. T. M. Dora, we are informed, is buying wheat and paying about the same price that can be obtained in Maysville. Let us support home trade and look after the interest of our own town.

Mr. David Frazee will leave us and settle in your city about the first of August; our loss is your gain. The house vacated by him will be occupied by Mr. Pollock.

Rev. F. S. Politt of Washington will preach in the Southern Methodist church in this place next Sunday morning and evening, and at Salem in afternoon at 3 1/2 o'clock. The pastor of this church will preach in Washington morning and evening.

Those who are permanently settled in this place ought to memorialize the town authorities to make arrangements to set trees in front of the different stores in this town for the convenience and comfort of those who love to read the daily Enquirer and BULLETIN. We have a capite ad cunctos.

If those at a distance want to know the difference in price charged for riding on the cars over the Kentucky Central and over the rough pike leading from here to Maysville, we answer. The former will furnish conveyance and take you for 2 cents or about that much per mile are over the latter you must furnish your horse and buggy and pay 3 cents per mile. Let us have the Buffalo suspended over Main street in our town, indicating the route and make a road from here to Maysville. What say you Brookvillians?

Our little village is quiet, when one travels along a railroad and sees the business done in villages no larger than ours, and then returns to see what is done here, it seems that nothing is being done but it is otherwise. We have five or six houses receiving tobacco pressing and sending it to market which necessitates the employment of a great many hands, but it is all done in a quiet way.

But one thing commendable in our village is that we sell no whisky here only by prescription from some of our physicians, and as a consequence you very seldom see a man intoxicated and such is the antagonism to whisky selling and whisky drinking here that it requires no effort to keep it out of the place. Much to be preferred is this state of things to bustle and drunkenness in railroad town. Germantown is a nice place to live.

Germantown circuit of the church south will be honored with the District conference next May or June. I believe it is generally customary to have one of the Bishops attend these annual meetings and therefore expect to see and hear one of the chief dignitaries. The conference will convene at Halton.

The marriage notice, in yesterday's BULLETIN, of Mr. William M. Brothers and Miss Laura J. Rigdon is a little premature. There was no wedding in our village the 12th.

Our hotels of late have been doing a good business crowded with agents who have been selling a patent churn in our midst. Their coming to this place was rather opportune. The school was out and all the boarders had left.

We are glad that we can have a daily paper so cheap. Success to the DAILY BULLETIN, NOW AND THEN.

DOING THE SOUTH JUSTICE.

The Plain Spoken Michigan Politician Who is Afraid to Lose His Grip.

From the Detroit Free Press.

In Charleston I met a Michigander who has served two terms in the Michigan Legislature, held a Federal office of some prominence in the State and been famous as a politician in the Republican party. After we had walked around for an hour I asked:

"Now, then, what do you think of these people? You have seen them with their coats off, and can judge them as they are."

"I tell you I'm ashamed of myself? was the reply. "When I think of how we have lied about them and their institutions I am ashamed to look them in the face."

"Have they treated you well?"

"Splendidly."

"And they knew you were from the North?"

"Yes."

"And that you were a strong Republican?"

"Yes."

"And what do you think of the darky?"

"D—n him, sir, d—n him!" was his hearty exclamation. "We wouldn't stand the half from him that the South does. He is lazy shiftless, thievish, and a general nuisance. I've talked with a score of 'em and they are as ignorant as our horses. They vote my ticket, but they can't tell my why. They have no reason, no argument, no principle, and so little sense that I wonder how they get through the week."

"When you return home you'll do the South justice?"

"How?"

"Why, you'll talk to your party members just as you have talked to me?"

"N—o, I can't do that," he answered.

"If I should go back and tell 'em exactly how things are I'd—I'd—"

"You'd lose your grip?"

"Exactly."

"And to keep your grip you must continue to lie about, abuse, and malign the people who have taken you to their dinner tables, and shown you every possible kindness and courtesy! You must continue to claim that they don't give the black man a fair show when you know better! You must continue to call 'em rebels, when you see Federal law obeyed, and everybody contented and happy! Colonel, politics is a nasty business."

"Cuss politics!" he growled, as he left me at the corner.

Swindled by a Beautiful Creature.

Geneva Continental Gazette.

One of the cleverest and most beautiful members of the world-wide corporation of thieves and swindlers has just honored Paris with her fleeting presence, victimizing one of the principal hotels within a stone's throw of the opera by way of a slight diversion. The beautiful stranger, whose distinguished manners and appearance left no doubt in the eyes of the credulous as to her quality, arrived about ten days ago, and retained one sumptuous apartment for herself and another for her brother-in-law, Prince P., who was shortly to arrive from Nice. In the interim she occupied her time by visiting the fashionable shops, where she on the strength of her assumed title, easily obtained credit to the amount of 100,000 francs. The day before yesterday, however, her peaceful existence was cruelly interrupted by a telegram from the prince stating that his illustrious spouse had had the misfortune to fracture her leg.

Hissypathizing sister-in-law, overcome with anxiety and grief, determined to depart immediately in order to render what aid her tender heart and delicate hands could offer, meanwhile begging the confiding host to reserve her apartment, and to take care of the luggage she was compelled to leave behind, providing herself only with absolute necessities. However, as creditors innumerable and importunate put in their appearance soon after the departure of the lady, it was deemed advisable to wire to Nice, to remind the absent one of her devoirs, when, lo! neither prince nor lady were known to be found in all bella Nizza. Upon that the capacious trunks that were left in Paris being broken open, they were found to contain nothing more precious than old boots, rubbish and stones. It is an old method of paying for lodgings, but it proved successful as long as the confidence and the three card tricks prosper, for of all the fools that are said to be born every minute, a sufficient number have as yet always survived to serve the purpose of swindlers.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.
ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan. 20, 1880.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours,
P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.
B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.
KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unequalled success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vermont. j27d.

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensible to Merchants Shippers
And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.
